BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Riobard O'Dwyer, a retired National School teacher, of Eyeries, County Cork, Ireland is a genealogist and social historian who studied the families of the Beara Peninsula. The Beara Peninsula is located in southwest Ireland between Kenmare Bay and Bantry Bay. The peninsula is divided into four civil parishes (Kilcaskan, Kilcatherine, Killaconenagh, and Kilnamanagh) and six Catholic parishes (Adrigole, Allihies, Castletown, Eyeries, Glengarriff, and Kilcatherine). Common surnames include Blake, (O')Brien, Connolly, O'Connor, Cronin, Crowley, O'Driscoll, Goggin, Harrington, (O')Leary, Lynch, McCarthy, (O')Sullivan, (O')Shea, and Twomey. Families from the Beara Peninsula immigrated to the United States and Great Britain with lesser amounts going to Australia, Canada, New Zealand, and a few other countries. The families who immigrated to the United States went primarily to New York, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island but also Illinois, Montana, New Jersey, California, Iowa, Arizona, Connecticut, and New Hampshire.

For more than fifty years, Riobard travelled the highways and byways, interviewed all those of the living and the several old people long since dead and gathered their stories, studied the Church records of every Parish in the Beara Peninsula and went through many overgrown cemeteries studying the headstones. He published the four volume Who were my ancestors between 1976 and 1989 and he published the three volume Annals of Beara in 2009.

Riobard lectured in Boston, Salt Lake City, etc., on his work, and in fact he entertained both crew and passengers with a selection of Irish traditional music on his accordion on the flight between Butte and Salt Lake City (he is an accomplished musician and performed for several broadcasts of Irish traditional music on the accordion). Riobard took part in Butte, Montana, in the making of the Film "From Beara to Butte", which was based on his work about the copper miners who emigrated there from the Allihies copper mines in Beara.

Although not reflected in this collection, Riobard O'Dwyer is also known for winning seven All-Ireland triple jump championships including five championships in a row (still an Irish Record). He also won Cork, Kerry, Wexford, Munster, and Leinster Championships. He still holds the County Wexford triple jump Championship by jumping two feet out over the end of the pit on one occasion and he was also Irish Chief Coach for the triple jump. He won Cork, Munster, and Colleges medals in football, and wrote a history of football in the Beara Peninsula.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Riobard O'Dwyer Papers contains genealogies, vital records, cemetery records, occupations, and notes. The genealogies include 155 composition notebooks organized by townland with compiled genealogies. The handwritten genealogical sketches for the families that lived in the townland focus on family groups: husband, wife, and their children. The data for each husband and wife includes the names of their parents, baptism date and place, marriage date, officiant, witnesses, death date, cause, and may include comments from oral history. Typical data for the children include birth date, baptism date, priest's and sponsor's names, and often include notes about occupation, emigration, marriage, or death.

The transcribed vital records include Adrigole Parish (baptisms, 1855-1996; marriages, 1831-1995; deaths, 1864-1979); Allihies Parish (baptisms 1820-2002, marriages 1823-2002, deaths 1864-1965); Castletown & Bere Island (baptisms, 1819-2002; marriages, 1817-2005; deaths, 1864-1986), Eyeries Parish (baptisms, 1843-1927; marriages, 1823-2007; deaths, 1864-2007); Glengarriff & Bonane (baptisms, 1830-1997; marriages, 1831-1997; deaths, 1864-1998), and Kilcatherine (baptisms, 1928-2007; deaths, 1965-1991).

The collection includes transcriptions from Church of Ireland records (baptisms, 1787-1903; deaths, 1807-1981). There are also Church of Ireland marriages for Berehaven (1805-1929), Parish of Glengarriff (1864-1955), and Parish Church Kilcaskin (Adrigole) (1847-1929).

The cemetery records are transcribed tombstone inscriptions from local cemeteries including Ballaghbue, Cahermore, Dromlave, Dursey Island, Fiachna, Kilcaskan, Kilcatherine, Rossmacowen, St. Finian, and St. Michael's Cemetery.

There are fifteen composition notebooks that contain data on occupations such as army, clergymen, coastguards, farmer, labourer, light keepers, miners, police officers, schoolmasters, and scripture readers taken from Church of Ireland records.

The notes section includes some historical material on the parishes and printed copies of Riobard's posts to the Beara listserv on Rootsweb especially those concerning "Stories from Beara" and "Names and variants of the Beara Peninsula". There are also photocopies of tithes lists and [Sir Richard Griffith's] "Primary valuation of Tenements, County Cork, Part of the Barony of Beare, in the Union of Castletown".
